ARTS & SCIENCE MUSEUM The lily-pond framed ArtScience Museum is a perfect embodiment of its name - Art and Science. The iconic lotus-inspired building is meant to symbolise the welcoming hand of Singapore with its ten fingers. These are supposed to be petals with a unique circular base that holds them together, portraying a structure similar to that of a concrete lotus flower. Each of the fingers features different gallery spaces, and hosts skylights at the fingertips, illuminating the interior curved dramatically. Not just this, the museum is designed in an eco-friendly way where the roof channels rainwater from the atrium, at the centre of the building, to a small reflective pool which contributes in making this place an architectural wonder. ● The lotus-shaped building with 10 fingers After a happening day, come back to hotel for a restful sleep.
